REPORT OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION

The school year ending last June was finished by the same corps of teachers that began in the fall, with credit to both teachers and pupils.

We were fortunate in securing so good teachers and keeping them through the year, though three of them secured positions with better salaries and one got married before the fall term opened. This necessitated our securing five new teachers, for, in justice to about 25 pupils we had to open the Pine Hill school.

The usual setback of getting started with new teachers was nearly overcome by being able to retain our superintendent, Mr. John Bacon, for another year.

Mr. Bacon, being thoroughly familiar with the work, had the work for the beginning of the term all maped out and meeting the new teachers Saturday evening before the opening of school had them ready to start the regular routine Monday morning. We were again fortunate in securing good teachers and while we are all the time striving for improvement, we feel that the work being done is a credit to all concerned and the citizens may feel that the liberal appropriation of money they made for school support has brought good returns. This town stands 4th in the state in the percentage of scholars in its high school and New Hampshire stands second in the Union; a very good showing for Hollis and something every citizen should strive to maintain and improve.

The transportation question is a hard one to always decide satisfactorily; for the most part parents have been very reasonable, and we assure all that the school board has considered it a great deal and tried to be just, and use all as near alike as circumstances and available means would permit. We are carrying over a little larger balance than a year ago largely due to not expending all of the $400 asked for for supplies. However this ought to have been done, for we now find that we economized to the extent that we are really very short of some necessary books and laboratory supplies. We received about the same amount of money from the State, a little more from the high school fund. This year we ask for an appropriation of $400.00 for supplies and $100.00 for repairs for the coming year. While it is very desirable to have a little money on hand to finish out the school year, in view of the fact that we have a little more on hand than a year ago we are inclined to think we can do with perhaps $200.00 less appropriation for the coming year, though your board feels that there are times when it would be greatly to the school's advantage if they could raise the salary of an exceptionally good teacher and not lose them because some other town offers better inducements. Our high school only graduated two last spring, this was partly due to the rearranging of the courses of study to get the approbation of the state, there will be a much larger number this year and from now on we hope.

We feel that much credit is due our superintendent for the improvement in our schools and earnestly hope we may retain him for some time to come.

Respectfully submitted,
CHARLES P. BROWN,
CLARA E. SMITH,
FRANCIS K. SWEETSER,
School Board.

REPORT OF SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

I herewith present my fourth annual report.

The attendance in Hollis schools remains about constant. We have but few to leave each year and a new pupil is so rare that if one appears he almost looks like an intruder. I become so well acquainted with the pupils that it seems my report should be a recital of the individual advancement of the children rather than this account of the general progress of the schools.

No superintendent is ever satisfied with results. In fact, no good teacher is ever satisfied with herself and class. It is only the one who has ceased to grow who is satisfied. The ideal is just beyond what we are doing, but in comparison with former years and in comparison with other towns this size, we may take just pride in the work done by our schools.

The total enrollment and average attendance as given in the table on the preceding page is practically the same as for the past three years. Ninety-five as a percentage of attendance is the same as for three years, and is considered fair. The number of tardinesses was 237 as compared with 427 the year before and 317 two years ago. Last year the high school was responsible for 155 of these marks and the preceding year, 258; a record of four per pupil last year and six per pupil the year before. Both years our school was marked in the state report as having an unusual record in this respect. We should try to excel in some other way.

Enrollment February 1, 1914 by grades and schools.

The grammar and intermediate rooms are now provided with suitable music books and fair progress has been made in this subject. The rural schools have shown marked improvement. No attempt has been made to give instructions in music in the high school. This should be our next advance in the subject.

Two years ago we adopted the A. N. Palmer Method Writing Books with correspondence courses for the teachers and diplomas for pupils who completed the course. One of our teachers succeeded so well that the company found her a position which paid double the salary we could offer. The pupils have shown good interest in penmanship. The method of teaching is such that successful teaching in the first four or five grades prevents the writing from appearing so well as it did under the finger movement or no system of writing. Results are quite noticeable in the grammar grades. One or two pupils now have diplomas and others expect to obtain them before graduation in June. If every pupil could secure a penmanship diploma before graduation we could well say that we knew our schools were accomplishing what they should in penmanship. We soon should be able to require this diploma before graduation.

The grade six history class has been provided with "Beginnings of America in Europe," a style of history text now being placed in all sixth grades as recommended by a national committee appointed to prepare a course of study in history.

No graduation exercises were held for the grammar school last June. Those receiving diplomas, were;

Charles Edward Baxter	Clara Meredith Smith
Cecil Gordon Denault
Ernest Nelson Woodin	Mildred Louise Lohnes
Hazel Frances Lougee

All of these have continued in the high school. It is our intention to connect the grammar grades with the high school so closely that there will be no more break between them than between any two grades. We do not prepare for high school in the grades any more than we prepare for the fifth grade in the fourth. Our ninth grade plans to take the children from where they stopped in the eighth grade.

The state superintendent recently made a comparison of towns in the state on the basis that the school system which had the largest proportion of its pupils in the high school was the best system. In this comparison Hollis ranked third in a list of sixty towns and cities maintaining high schools. The other town in my district maintaining a high school ranked forty-first.

The new attendance law requires every child to attend school until he is sixteen years of age unless he graduates from the grammar school, when he may leave school at fourteen.

Heretofore when pupils started to school at six and did not repeat a grade they graduated before they were fourteen. If a child failed in any grade he was likely to arrive at the legal age for leaving school before he graduated.

With two years added to the legal age for leaving school a pupil might fail in two grades and still secure his grammar school diploma before being allowed to leave school. There is now no reason why we cannot graduate every child in town unless he is mentally defective or has been unfortunate because of sickness. We sometimes have pupils of fair mental ability who repeat more than one grade. We owe it to them and to the town to provide special assistance for such pupils if there is danger that they will not complete the grammar school course. We sometimes find pupils who do not desire to graduate, and who become detrimental to the rest of the school. Such cases if any, are found in the grammar school. In these cases parents, teachers, superintendent, truant officer and school board should unite to assist them to complete the grammar school course. Let us be able to boast that every child in Hollis will graduate from the grammar school.

Manual training has always been considered beyond our reach. The newer idea on this subject is the extension of manual training and domestic science arts to the rural schools and to the schools of small towns. Each school is provided with at least one work bench, sufficient tools, and an oil stove. The expense is made as small as possible by painting rural school houses, making book shelves, polishing and varnishing desks, and by including repairs and other useful articles in the list of manual training work. The domestic arts class spends much of its time on materials provided by citizens of the district. Fruit is canned for parties who furnish the fruit and cans. Materials for bread making are supplied in the same way. Sometimes dinner is prepared at a rural school from materials brought by the children.

The aim of this subject is changed somewhat. We no longer think of manual work as an end in itself. Teachers do not aim to make skilled workmen by beginning thus early. The aim is to develope the child by means of manual training and not to train the child for manual work. This subject is a valuable educational instrument to be used for the developement of mental power. It has advantages peculiar to itself which are not secured from other subjects. We should not wait to start with a perfect equipment. We should begin with such things as we can afford and plan to spend as much time only as our equipment and ability of teachers would warrant.

The North school was unfortunate on account of sickness last year. They lost four weeks of the spring term, and some pupils were out much longer than that. In order to do justice to the pupils, they were permitted to go on with their grades but several of them will fail of promotion this year.

A few new seats are needed for this school and the building should be painted.

The Pine Hill school was re-opened last September with an enrollment of twenty-five pupils distributed in all grades but the fifth. Fair progress is being made there, although it is, of course, impossible to do good work with so many grades. The old school house is a disgrace to the town yet the uncertainty of keeping it open might prevent asking for an appropriation to build a new one. Extensive repairs should be made before the pupils are allowed to spend another year in this building. The room is small and poorly lighted. There is practically no black-board space and the sanitary conditions are bad. We should not force this rural community to endure conditions that would not be tolerated at the village.

We have continued the policy of employing normal graduates for the rural schools, and so far we have been exceedingly fortunate.

There were only two graduated from the high school last June. This class had been small throughout the high school course. They entered when our school was not of approved standing and when some of their classmates were going to other high schools or academies. They completed the full four year course and there should be no question about their ability to enter higher institutions of learning.

Nellie May Brilton, English course.

Carrol Coffin Read, English course.

A very fitting reception was given for the graduating class and high school teachers, Friday evening, June 13, at the town hall. Rev. Robert M. French gave a short address. After the diplomas were presented, refreshments were served and music was furnished by Thayer's orchestra of Pepperell, Mass.

Roman numerals indicate class and Arabic figures indicate number of pupils.

The attendance in the high school is about the same as last year although, as may be seen from the tables, several have dropped out of the Junior class. There is a large senior class to graduate in June. A fair percentage of this class will go to college. Much will depend upon them as the standing of a school with the colleges is set by the success of its students the first year in college. I believe our high school has "found itself" and that its graduates will compare favorably with those from other schools.

A commendable interest in athletics has been shown the past year. Basket ball has been successful, though not so financially. Athletics is an essential part of the school work both for the physical and for the moral training. This school is not large enough to make inter-scholastic games provide the necessary funds for athletic work.

If the town hall can be secured at times when it is not otherwise used it should be given to the students two or three times a week for athletic work and the expense should be borne by the school district.

The small high school class room cannot be properly ventilated in winter and this room does not provide sufficient space for class work. If it could be enlarged or another provided for the high school it would benefit both the class work and the discipline of the school.

At a time when school systems are being compared closely with one another the citizens of Hollis may wish to know if their children have as good advantages in school as those offered by larger towns or even by cities. There is no marked advantage in a larger number in a school system except that where so many attend the town feels justified in providing more perfect conditions. A town that can provide a teacher for each grade may have better schools than some large city. The city may crowd too many pupils into a room and lose its advantage by being parsimonious. The division line between good and only fair conditions is likely to be drawn between those schools having one grade in a room, or two grades with small classes and those that have three or more grades with sometimes a large number in each room. Even in a city school the primary and intermediate grades are divided into two classes for reading and sometimes for language and arithmetic. In music, drawing, penmanship, and sometimes other subjects they recite together. In a two grade room these classes sometimes recite together, but in a three grade room the divergence is too great to secure good results with all classes reciting together in any subject. In our schools with three grades in a room we excuse ourselves for not keeping up with some other schools on the ground that there are too many grades in each room. To perfect our schools each teacher should have but two grades and we should have four grade teachers. This is not a problem of increasing the seating capacity of the building but of giving each child as much of the teacher's time as he needs. The children need drill and but very little drill can be given in a three grade room. With two grades in a room classes could be combined in several subjects. Then with our medium sized classes we could compete favorably with the schools of any town in the state. Our schools need this extra touch to make them as complete as we could afford to make them. Four hundred dollars could not be spent for any improvement that would bring as great returns to the town as for the addition of one teacher in the grades. I note that there is ample room in our building for such improvement.

Respectfully,

JOHN BACON,
Supt. of Schools.
